

CUSTOM METAL RESTORATION
A DIVISION OF THE MARBLE RESTORATION COMPANY

The Marble Restoration Company Purchases Custom Metal Restoration

Stone Care Management, Inc., owner of The Marble Restoration Company, has announced the purchase of Custom Metal Restoration.

The merger of these two Philadelphia-area businesses offers clients a one-stop-shop for all their natural stone and metal restoration and maintenance needs.

In making the announcement, Stone Care CEO Rick Sirianni said that George and Michael Fedin, previous owners of Custom Metal, have agreed to assist with the transition and that all Custom Metal staff members, including Sally Fedin, the office manager, will remain in place.

Sally said of Rick Sirianni and The Marble Restoration Company that “his successful business, leadership, and heart which is just like ours ... we know he will take care of our employees and customers as we have for many years. I look forward to working with Rick and bringing both companies together as one.”

“We are very excited to offer our clients the same kind of quality and excellent customer service that both companies are known for,” Sirianni said. “Our president, Brynn Fata, is working on merging and automating the CMR systems into Stone Care to provide a seamless transition for our clients.”

Custom Metal, a long-time local family business, has specialized in original restoration, refinishing, and high-tech maintenance services for architectural metals. The company’s distinctive quality restoration work has included building facades, door and window frames, elevator cabs, escalators, decorative plaques and monuments.
